Republic of Macedonia

Criminal Code

(consolidated version with the amendments from March 2004, June 2006, January 2008 and September 2009)

Came into effect: 1 November 1996

GENERAL PART

1. GENERAL PROVISIONS

Legality in the determining of crimes and the prescribing of criminal sanctions

Article 1

Nobody can be sentenced to a punishment or some other penal sanction for an act, which before it was committed, was not determined by law to be a crime and for which no punishment was prescribed by law.

Fundaments and limits of criminal-legal coercion

Article 2

The protection of human freedoms and rights and of other basic values, and the implementation of criminal legal coercion, when this is within an extent that is necessary to prevent socially damaging activities, represent the fundament and limit for determining the crimes and the prescription of criminal sanctions.

Obligatory implementation of a more lenient criminal law

Article 3

(1) The law that was applicable at the time when a crime was committed shall be applied upon the person who has committed the crime.

(2) If the law has changed once or several times after the crime was committed, that law shall be applied which is more lenient towards the offender.

(3) If this law prescribes a new alternative measure, a safety measure or an educational measure, it can be applied only if it corresponds to a previously prescribed measure and if it is not more harmful to the perpetrator.

Criminal sanction

Article 4

Criminal sanctions are: punishments, alternative measures, security measures and educational measures.

Limitations in the execution of criminal sanctions

Article 5

An offender can be deprived or limited in certain rights in the execution of a criminal sanction only to the extent which corresponds to the nature and contents of this sanction, and only in a manner that provides respect of the offender's personality and his human dignity.

Applicability of the General Part

Article 6

The provisions from the General Part of this Code are applicable to all crimes determined by the laws of the Republic of Macedonia.

Enforcement of the Criminal Code for minors and young adults

Article 6-a

(1) This Code shall not apply for a minor, who during the time of committing the crime, which according to the law is a criminal act, has not turned fourteen years of age.

(2) The provisions of this Code, if otherwise not determined by other law, shall apply for minors and young adults as perpetrators of criminal acts determined by law or by international agreements ratified in accordance with the Constitution of the Republic of Macedonia.

2. A CRIME AND CRIMINAL RESPONSIBILITY

2.1. General provisions on crime and criminal responsibility

Crime

Article 7

A crime is an unlawful act which is determined by law to be a crime, and whose characteristics are determined by law.

An act of minor significance

Article 8

(1) An act is not a crime even though it contains characteristics of a crime, when it is an act of minor significance, because of the lack or insignificance of the damaging consequences and the low level of criminal responsibility of the offender.

(2) The provision from paragraph 1 may be applied to a crime for which the law prescribes a fine or an imprisonment sentence of up to three years.

Self-defense

Article 9

(1) An act is not a crime if it was committed in self-defense.

(2) Self-defense is that defense, which is necessary for the offender to avert a simultaneous unlawful attack upon himself or upon another.

(3) The offender who has exceeded the limits of self-defense may be punished more leniently, and if the exceeding was done because of a strong irritation or fear caused by the attack, he may be acquitted from punishment.

Extreme necessity

Article 10

(1) An act is not a crime, which was committed in extreme necessity.

(2) Extreme necessity exists when the crime was committed in order for the offender to avert from himself or from another a simultaneous obvious danger, which could not be averted in some other way, and hereby the perpetrated evil is not larger than the evil that had threatened.

(3) An offender who himself caused danger by negligence, or who has exceeded the limits of extreme necessity, may be punished more leniently, and if the exceeding was committed under especially alleviating circumstances - he can even be acquitted from punishment.

(4) Extreme necessity does not exist if the offender was obliged to expose himself to danger.

Criminal responsibility

Article 11

(1) An offender bears criminal responsibility if he is mentally competent and if he has committed the crime with intent or out of negligence and was aware, or was obliged and could have been aware that the activity has been prohibited.

(2) The offender bears criminal responsibility for a crime committed out of negligence only when this is so determined by the law.

Mental competence

Article 12

(1) The offender is mentally incompetent if at the time when he performed the crime he could not understand the significance of his act or if he could not control his actions because of a permanent or temporary mental illness, temporary mental disorder or retarded mental development, or other especially severe mental impediments (mental incompetence).

(2) The perpetrator of a crime whose ability to understand the significance of his action and the ability to control his actions was significantly decreased because of some situation from item 1, may be punished more leniently (significantly decreased mental competence).

(3) The perpetrator of a crime bears responsibility if with the use of alcohol, drugs or in some other manner, he brings himself into a situation when he could not understand the significance of his act or control his actions, if before he brought himself into such a situation the act was present in his intent, or in relation to the crime he was negligent, and the law prescribes for such an act criminal responsibility also for negligence.

Intent

Article 13

A crime was committed with intent when the offender was aware about his act and he wanted it to be committed; or when he was aware that because of his act or omission, there could be a damaging consequence, but he agreed for it to happen.

Negligence

Article 14

A crime is committed out of negligence when the offender was aware that because of his act or omission, a damaging consequence could happen, but lightheartedly he thought he could prevent it or that it would not happen; or when he was not aware of a possible damaging consequence, even though according to the circumstances and according to his personal features he was obliged to be and he could be aware of this possibility.

Responsibility for a more severe consequence

Article 15

When the result of a crime was a more severe consequence, for which the law prescribes a more serious punishment, this punishment may be pronounced if the offender acted out of negligence in relation to this consequence.

Real mistake

Article 16

(1) The offender is not criminally responsible, when at the time the crime was committed, he had no knowledge of some of its characteristics, determined by law; or if he wrongly considered that there are circumstances according to which, if they had existed, this would have been permissible.

(2) If the offender was under mistaken notion out of negligence, he is criminally responsible for the crime committed out of negligence, if the law determines a criminal responsibility for such an act.

Mistake of law

Article 17

(1) The perpetrator of a crime is not criminally responsible for an act if for justified reasons he did not know and he could not have known that this act is prohibited.

(2) If the offender could have known that this act is prohibited, he may be punished more leniently.

2.2. Preparation and attempt of a crime

Preparation

Article 18

(1) A person intentionally preparing a crime shall be punished only when this is explicitly so determined by law.

(2) The preparation of a crime may be determined by law as a special crime, or it may be prescribed by law that the preparation of a certain crime is punishable.

(3) When the law prescribes punishment for the preparation of a certain crime, the preparation may consist of procurement or adaptation of means for the perpetration of a crime; of removing hindrances for committing the crime; of making agreements, planning or organizing together with other perpetrators of a crime; as well as of other activities with which conditions are created for direct perpetration of the crime, and which do not represent an action of perpetration.

Attempt

Article 19

(1) A person that intentionally starts the perpetration of a crime, but who does not complete it, shall be punished for an attempted crime for which according to the law a sentence could be pronounced of five years of imprisonment or a more severe punishment, and for the attempt of some other crime only when the law explicitly prescribes the punishment of an attempt.

(2) The offender shall be punished for an attempt within the limits of the punishment prescribed for the crime, and he may be punished more leniently.

Unsuitable attempt

Article 20

The offender who attempts to perpetrate a crime with unsuitable means or towards and unsuitable object may be acquitted from punishment.

Voluntary calling off

Article 21

(1) An offender who was preparing or who attempted to commit a crime, but who voluntarily called off its perpetration may be acquitted from punishment.

(2) The perpetrator has given up the preparation of the activity when he\she has ceased any further preparations or has stopped or seriously tried to stop the commencement of the performance of the criminal activity.

(3) In case of voluntary calling off, the offender shall be punished for those activities that represent some other independent crime.

2.3. Accessory in crime

Joint perpetration

Article 22

If two or several persons, by participation in an act of perpetration or with any other significant contribution towards the performance of the crime, commit jointly a crime, each one of them shall be punished with the punishment that is prescribed for that crime.

Instigation

Article 23

(1) A person that instigates, with intent, another to committing a crime, shall be punished as if he had perpetrated the crime himself.

(2) A person that instigates, with intent, another to commit a crime, for which a sentence of five years of imprisonment or a more severe sentence could be pronounced, and there is not even an attempt of this crime, shall be punished as for an attempted crime.

Accessory

Article 24

(1) A person who with intent assists in the perpetration of a crime, shall be punished as if he had committed the crime himself, and he may be punished more leniently.

(2) As accessory to perpetrating a crime shall be considered especially: giving advice or instructions how to commit the crime; making available to the offender means for committing the crime; removal of hindrances for perpetrating the crime; as well as giving promise in advance for covering up the crime, the offender, the means with which the crime was perpetrated, the traces of the crimes or the objects obtained through the crime.

Limits of criminal responsibility and possibility of punishing the accomplices

Article 25

(1) The joint offender is criminally responsible within the limits of his intent or negligence, and the instigator and accessory - within the limits of their intent.

(2) The joint offender, instigator or accessory that voluntarily prevented the perpetration of a crime may be acquitted from punishment. This is also applicable in the case of preparation of a crime, regardless whether it is determined by law as a special crime, or whether the law prescribes as punishable the preparation of a certain crime (article 8 item 2).

(3) Personal relations, characteristics and circumstances because of which the law excludes criminal responsibility, or it permits acquittal from punishment, a more lenient or a more severe punishment, may be taken into consideration only for that offender, joint offender, instigator or accessory where such relations, characteristics and circumstances exist.

2.4. Special provisions on criminal responsibility for crimes perpetrated through the public media

Criminal responsibility of the Chief Editor

Article 26

(1) The Chief Editor, respectively the person substituting for him at the time when the information was published, is criminally responsible for crimes committed through a newspaper or some other periodical publication, through radio, television or through film news, if:

- 1) the author remained unknown until the conclusion of the main hearing before the court of first instance;
- 2) the information was published without consent from the author;
- 3) at the time of publication of the information actual or legal hindrances existed for the persecution of the author, which continue to last.

(2) The Chief Editor, respectively the person substituting for him, is not criminally responsible if for justified reasons he did not know about one of the circumstances listed in points 1, 2 and 3 of item 1.

Criminal responsibility of the publisher, printer and producer

Article 27

(1) When the circumstances from article 26 exist, criminal responsibility is born by:

- 1) the publisher - for a crime committed through a non-periodically printed publication, and if there is no publisher or if actual or legal hindrances exist for his persecution - by the printer who knew about it;

2) the producer - for a crime committed through a record, a tape, a film for private or public presentation, slides, phonograms, video and audio means or similar communication means intended for a wider circle of people.

(2) If the publisher, printer or producer is a legal entity or a state agency, criminal responsibility is born by the person responsible for the publication, printing or production.

Criminal accountability of the importer and the distributor of the mean for public information

Article 27-a

(1) If the crime has been committed within a mean of public information which is issued, printed, produced or broadcasted abroad, and is distributed within the country under the terms of article 26, the importer or the distributor of that material shall be criminally accountable.

(2) If the importer or the distributor is a legal entity or a state authority, the responsible official within the legal entity or the state authority shall be criminally accountable.

Application of the general provisions on criminal responsibility

Article 28

The provisions on criminal responsibility for the persons listed in articles 26, 27 and 27-a shall apply only if these persons are not criminally responsible according to the general provisions for criminal responsibility in this Code.

5. Criminal accountability of a legal entity

Conditions for criminal accountability of a legal entity

Article 28-a

In cases as prescribed by law, the legal entity is liable for the criminal act committed by the responsible person of the legal entity, on behalf, on the account or for the benefit of the legal entity.

(2) The legal entity is also liable for a criminal act which is committed by its employee or representative of the legal entity that resulted in significant benefit in assets or resulted in damages for someone else, if:

1) the execution of a conclusion, order or any other decision or approval by administrative body, management body or supervisory body, means perpetration of a criminal act; or

2) the crime was committed due to omission of obligatory supervision by the administrative body, management body or supervisory body; or

3) the administrative body, management body or supervisory body failed to prevent the criminal act or concealed it or failed to report the crime before the initiation of criminal proceeding against the perpetrator.

(3) Under the terms specified in paragraphs (1) and (2) of this article, all legal entities are liable, with the exception of the State.

(4) The Self-Government units are liable only for acts committed outside their public competences.

(4) Under the conditions specified in paragraphs (1) and (2) of this article, a foreign legal entity is criminally liable, if the act has been committed within the territory of the Republic of Macedonia, regardless whether there is a representative office or subsidiary of the legal entity that operates within the territory of the country.

Limitations of legal entity's liability

Article 28-b

(1) The liability of the legal entity does not exclude the criminal liability of a physical person as perpetrator of the criminal act.

(2) Under the conditions specified in Article 28-a, paragraphs (1) and (2) thereof, the legal entity is also liable for a criminal act in case when there are actual or legal obstacles to determine the criminal liability of the physical person as perpetrator of the crime.

(3) If the criminal act has been committed due to negligence, the legal entity is liable under the conditions specified in Article 28-a of this law if the law provides punishment for a crime committed due to negligence (Article 11, paragraph 2).

Liability in case of bankruptcy and change of status of the legal entity

Article 28-c

(1) The legal entity that has bankrupted shall be liable for a crime committed before the decision was passed for instigation of bankruptcy procedure, under the conditions specified in Article 28-a of this law, if the legal entity gained significant benefit in assets or caused significant damage to someone else by committing the crime.

(2) If before completion of the criminal proceeding against the legal entity, there is no association, merging, division or any other status change pursuant to law due to which the legal entity no longer retains the status of a legal entity, the criminal proceeding shall continue against its legal successor or successors.

2.6. Manner, time and place of perpetration of a crime

Manner of perpetration of a crime

Article 29

(1) A crime can be perpetrated by act or omission.

(2) A crime can be perpetrated by omission only when the offender omitted the act that he was legally bound to commit, and the omission has equal significance as causing the consequence of the crime by act.

Time of perpetration of a crime

Article 30

The crime was perpetrated at the time when the offender acted, or was obliged to act, regardless when the consequence appeared.

Place of perpetration of a crime

Article 31

(1) The crime was perpetrated both at the place where the offender acted or was obliged to act, as well as at the place where the consequence appeared.

(2) The preparation and the attempt of a crime are considered to be perpetrated both at the place where the offender acted, as well as at the place where according to his intent the consequence should have or could have appeared.

(3) The activity of the accomplice has been committed at the location where the activity was transferred to the perpetrator, as well as at the place where the accomplice has worked or was obligated to work.

3. PUNISHMENTS

3.1. The aim of punishment, the types of punishments and conditions for pronouncing them

The aim of punishment

Article 32

Besides the realization of justice, the aim of punishment is:

(1) to prevent the offender from committing crimes and his correction;

(2) educational influence upon others, as not to perform crimes.

Types of punishments

Article 33

(1) The criminally accountable persons can be sentenced as follows for the crimes they have committed:

- 1) imprisonment
- 2) fine
- 3) a ban from performing their profession, activity or duty;
- 4) eviction of a foreigner from the country

(2) The sentence of imprisonment may be applied only as the main sentence.

(3) The fine may be applied as a main sentence or as a secondary sentence together with the imprisonment sentence or with the probation sentence with a predetermined imprisonment sentence.

(4) If for a crime the law prescribes an imprisonment sentence or a fine, only of them may be applied as the main sentence, unless the law stipulates that both sentences may be applied.

(5) In addition to the main sentence, one or more secondary sentences may be applied, in compliance with the conditions of applying sentences, stipulated in the law. The law may stipulate that it is obligatory to apply a secondary sentence

(6) The sentence involving a ban for performing the profession, activity or duty, may be applied only as a secondary sentence in addition to the imprisonment sentence or a probation sentence with a predetermined imprisonment sentence.

(7) The sentences related to bans from driving a motor vehicle and eviction of foreign persons from the country, may be applied if the perpetrator is sentenced with imprisonment or a fine, probation or a court reprimand.

(8) The sentence whereby the perpetrator is banned from driving a motor vehicle, may be applied as the only sentence to the perpetrator of a negligence for which a fine or an imprisonment sentence of up to one year has been prescribed, if the perpetrator has committed the crime under particularly extenuating circumstances.

Legality in the pronouncing of a punishment

Article 34

(1) The offender is sentenced to the punishment prescribed for the perpetrated crime, and a more lenient punishment may only be pronounced under the conditions foreseen by this Code.

(2) For crimes perpetrated from self-interest, a fine may be pronounced as secondary punishment even if it is not prescribed by law, or when it is prescribed by law that the offender shall be sentenced with imprisonment or with a fine, and the court pronounces a punishment of imprisonment as the main punishment.

Imprisonment

Article 35

(1) Imprisonment may not be shorter than thirty days, or longer than 15 years. For the crimes for which the law prescribes a life imprisonment sentence, a sentence of imprisonment of up to 20 years may be applied.

(2) If a punishment of 15 years of imprisonment is prescribed for a premeditated crime, a punishment of life imprisonment may be prescribed for severe forms of this crime.

(3) The punishment of life imprisonment may not be prescribed as the only main punishment.

(4) The punishment of life imprisonment may not be pronounced for an offender who at the time the crime was committed has not attained the age of 21 years.

(5) Imprisonment is pronounced with full years and months, and up to six months, also with full days.

(6) When a punishment of imprisonment is prescribed for crimes without appointing a minimal measure, and when the maximum measure is not longer than three years, it is compulsory to also pronounce a fine besides the punishment of imprisonment.

(7) The imprisonment shall take place within facilities for imprisonment sentences, specified by law.

Parole

Article 36

(1) The condemned may be released from serving a punishment of imprisonment under the condition that until the expiration of the period for which the punishment was pronounced he does not perpetrate a new crime; if he has corrected himself so that it can be expected with justification that he would behave well in freedom, and especially that he would not commit crimes. The evaluation whether the condemned shall be set free on parole shall take into consideration his conduct during the serving of his sentence, his performance in the work duties considering his work capability, and other circumstances which show that the aim of the punishment has been achieved.

(2) The condemned that has served one half of a punishment of imprisonment may be released on parole.

(3) As an exception, a condemned who has served one third of a punishment of imprisonment may also be released on parole, under the conditions from item 1, and if special circumstances concerning the personality of the condemned evidently show that the aim of the punishment has been attained.

(4) The condemned sentenced to life imprisonment may not be released on parole before he serves at least 15 years of the punishment of imprisonment.

(5) For the put on probation, the court may specify a protective supervision, which shall comprise special measures of assistance, care, supervision or protection specified by the social authority.

(6) A juvenile may be released on parole from serving a punishment of juvenile imprisonment if he has served one third of the punishment, but not before he stays one year of the duration of the sentence, and if grounds exist to expect that according to the results achieved in correction and reeducation, he would behave well in freedom, continue his education and work, and would not commit crimes in the future. During the parole, the court may determine a measure of intensified supervision.

Revoking parole

Article 37

(1) The court shall revoke the parole if during the time the condemned is under parole he commits one or more crimes for which a sentence has been pronounced of imprisonment or of juvenile imprisonment longer than two years.

(2) The court may revoke the parole if the person on parole commits one or more crimes for which a sentence of imprisonment or juvenile imprisonment of up to two years has been pronounced. In the evaluation whether it shall revoke the parole, the court shall especially take into consideration the similarity of the perpetrated crimes, their significance, the motives why they were perpetrated, and other circumstances that show the justification for revoking the parole or if after two written warnings from the competent authority, fails to fulfill the obligation pertaining to the protective supervision (article 36 paragraph 5).

(3) When the court revokes the parole, it shall pronounce a punishment with applying the provisions from articles 44 and 46 item 2, taking the previously pronounced punishment as already confirmed. The part of the punishment that the condemned has already served according to the previous sentence is calculated into the new punishment, and the time passed on parole is not considered.

(4) The provisions from items 1 to 3 shall be applied also when the person under parole is tried for a crime that he perpetrated before being put on parole.

(5) If the person on parole is sentenced to a punishment of imprisonment or to a juvenile imprisonment of up to two years, and the court does not revoke the parole, the parole is extended for the time which the condemned has passed in serving the punishment of imprisonment, respectively of juvenile imprisonment.

Fine

Article 38

(1) The fine shall be applied in the form of daily fines, where the number of the daily fines may not be less than five or more than 360 daily fines.

(2) The court shall specify the number of daily fines in accordance with the general rules for specifying the fine.

(3) the court shall determine the level of the daily fine having in mind the material and personal circumstances of the perpetrator, starting, as a rule, from the net daily actual or possible income of the perpetrator, as well as the family and other obligations of the perpetrator as well as the material situation of the perpetrator at the time of the passed judgment. The smallest amount of a daily fine may be the denar equivalent of one euro and the highest amount may be the denar equivalent of 5000 euros.

(4) The court decision shall contain the amount of the fine which may be obtained by multiplying the number of the daily fines with the specified amount of a single daily fine.

(5) For the purposes of determining the amount of the daily fine, the court may ask for reports from banks, financial and other institutions, state authorities and legal entities, which shall be obligated to submit the requested reports and can not invoke the principle of a trade or any other secret.

(6) In the case when the fine is applied as a secondary sentence in addition to an imprisonment sentence, the court shall determine the monetary amount, without applying the provisions stipulated in paragraphs 1 to 5. The monetary fine, if applied as a secondary fine, may not be less than the denar equivalent of 20 euros, nor more than the denar equivalent of 5000 euros.

Collection of a monetary fine

Article 38-a

(1) The judgment shall specify the deadline for payment of the fine, which may not be shorter than 15 days nor longer than three months. However, in certain justified cases the court may allow the defendant to pay the fine in installments, provided that the time period for the payment of the entire fine is not longer than two years. If the perpetrator is a foreign person the court shall specify the fine to be paid without any delay or its payment to be secured in another way.

(2) If the defendant fails to pay the fine within the specified time period, the court may specify a different time period or, if the court determines that the defendant does not want to pay the fine, to order a forced collection of the fine applying a procedure specified by law. If the provision of a new time period, which may not be longer than three months, or the forced collection prove unsuccessful, the court may act as follows: for each unpaid installment it may specify one day imprisonment or, when the fine has been applied as a secondary sentence, for every started denar equivalents of 20 euros, the court may specify one day imprisonment, provided that the total time of imprisonment may not be longer than six months.

(3) If the defendant pays only a part of the fine, the rest will proportionally be transformed into imprisonment time, and if the defendant pays the remainder of the fine, the imprisonment shall be terminated.

(4) After the death of the defendant the fine shall no longer be enforced.

Prohibition to perform profession, activity or duty

Article 38-b

(1) The court may ban the perpetrator which has been sentenced to imprisonment or probation stipulating imprisonment, from performing a certain profession or activity, duties or works related to obtaining, disposing, usage, management and handling of property or related to keeping of that property, if the perpetrator has abused his\her profession, activity or duty in order to perform a crime and if, based on the nature of the committed crime and the circumstances surrounding the crime, one may expect the perpetrator may further abuse the activity to commit a future crime.

(2) The sentence from paragraph 1 shall also apply to prohibition from performing duties of an official, responsible person within a legal entity or person performing a work of public interest.

(3) In cases determined by law, a mandatory prohibition may be prescribed along with the sentence of imprisonment, in case the perpetrator has been sentenced with imprisonment of at least six months.

(4) The court shall determine the duration of the ban stipulated in paragraph (1), which may not be shorter than one or longer than ten years, counting from the day of the legal effectiveness of the judgment, with the provision that the time spent in imprisonment does not count towards the duration of the ban.

(5) When passing a judgment stipulating probation the court may specify that the probation will be revoked if the perpetrator violates the ban to perform the profession, activity or a duty.

Ban to operate a motor vehicle

Article 38-c

(1) The perpetrator of a crime which jeopardizes public traffic may be banned by the court from operating a motor vehicle of a certain type and category, if it finds that the circumstances under which the crime was committed or any previous violations of the traffic rules, suggest that the perpetrator may commit such a crime again.

(2) When passing the sentence stipulated in paragraph 1, the court must arrange for the confiscation of the driving license from the perpetrator or ban any future issuance of a driving license to the perpetrator for the duration of the ban.

(3) The court shall pass the sentence stipulated in paragraph 1, if the crime has been committed in an intoxicated state.

(4) The court shall determine the duration of the ban, which may not be shorter than three months nor longer than five years, counting from the day of legal effectiveness of the judgment, with the provision that the time spent in imprisonment does not count towards the duration of the ban. If the perpetrator of the crime is a professional driver the duration of the ban may not be shorter than one year or longer than ten years.

(5) If the sentence stipulated in paragraph 1 is passed against a person that has a foreign driving license to operate a motor vehicle, the sentence shall ban the perpetrator from operating a motor vehicle on the territory of the Republic of Macedonia.

(6) When passing a judgment stipulating probation the court may specify that the probation will be revoked if the perpetrator violates the ban to operate a motor vehicle.

(7) When passing a judgment banning the operation of a motor vehicle as the only sentence, the court shall specify a fine or an imprisonment sentence which shall be performed if the perpetrator violates the ban.

Eviction of a foreigner from the country

Article 38-d

(1) The court may pass a judgment for eviction of a perpetrator of a crime who is not a citizen of the Republic of Macedonia from the country, when it deems that the nature of the crime, the motives of the perpetrator and the circumstances under which the crime was committed suggest that undesirability of a future stay of the perpetrator in the country.

(2) The sentence stipulated in paragraph 1 may last from one to ten years or forever and commences on the day of the eviction of the perpetrator from the territory of the Republic of Macedonia.

(3) The sentence stipulated in paragraph 1 may not be passed against a perpetrator who enjoys protection in accordance with ratified international agreement.

3.2. To mete out punishment

General rules to mete out punishment

Article 39

(1) The court shall mete out a punishment to the offender within the limits prescribed by law for that crime, having in mind the criminal responsibility of the offender, the weight of the crime and the aims of the punishment.

(2) Hereby, the court shall have in mind all the circumstances that have influence upon decreasing or increasing the punishment (extenuating or aggravating circumstances), and especially: the level of criminal responsibility, the motives for the perpetrated crime, the extent of endangerment or damage to the protected goods, the circumstances under which the crime was committed, the contribution of the victim in the perpetration of the crime, the previous life of the offender, his personal circumstances and his behavior after the perpetrated crime, as well as other circumstances that concern the personality of the offender.

(3) When the court meets the punishment it shall especially have in mind the total effect of the punishment to the offender, its consequences to the personality and needs of re-socialization of the offender.

(4) When the court metes out the punishment to the offender for the committed crime, perpetrated in repetition, it shall especially have in mind whether the previous crime is of the same kind as the new crime, whether the crimes were committed with the same motives and how much time passed since the previous sentence, respectively since the punishment was served or was forgiven.

(5) While meting out the sentence, the court shall particularly take into consideration if the crime was committed against a person or group of persons or property, directly or indirectly, due to his or their national and social background, political and religious belief, wealth and social position, gender, race or color of skin.

(6) When it metes out a fine, the court shall have in mind also the state of wealth of the offender, herewith considering his other incomes, his property and his family obligations.

Mitigation of the punishment

Article 40

The court may mete out a punishment for the offender under the limit prescribed by law or apply a more lenient form of punishment when:

- 1) the law foresees that the offender may be punished more leniently;
- 2) it concludes that especially extenuating circumstances exist which point out that the aim of the punishment shall be achieved also through a more lenient punishment.

Limits of mitigation of the punishment

Article 41

(1) When circumstances exist for the mitigation of the punishment from article 40, the court shall mitigate the punishment within these limits:

1. if the smallest prescribed measure of punishment for the crime is imprisonment with a duration of ten years or longer, the punishment may be mitigated to five years of imprisonment;
- 2) If, for a criminal activity, the court has passed, as the smallest sentence, a sentence of imprisonment of eight or more years, the sentence may be assuaged to four years of imprisonment.
3. if the smallest prescribed measure of punishment for the crime is imprisonment with a duration of five years or longer, the punishment may be mitigated to three years of imprisonment;
4. If, for a criminal activity, the court has passed, as the smallest sentence, a sentence of imprisonment of four or more years, the sentence may be assuaged to two years of imprisonment.
5. if the smallest prescribed measure of punishment for the crime is imprisonment with a duration of three years or more, the punishment may be mitigated to one year of imprisonment;
6. if the smallest prescribed measure of punishment for the crime is imprisonment with a duration of one year or more, the punishment may be mitigated to three months of imprisonment
7. if the smallest prescribed measure of punishment for the crime is imprisonment of under one year, the punishment may be mitigated to 30 days of imprisonment;
8. if the prescribed punishment for the crime is imprisonment of up to three years, with a designated smallest measure, a fine may be pronounced instead of the punishment of imprisonment;
9. if a fine is prescribed for the crime, with a designated smallest measure, the punishment may be mitigated to the general legal maximum.

(2) In deciding to what extent to mitigate the punishment according to the rules from item 1, the court shall especially have in mind the smallest and the largest measure of punishment prescribed for the crime.

Acquittal from punishment

Article 42

(1) The court may acquit from punishment the offender only when the law foresees this explicitly.

(2) When the court is authorized to acquit the offender from punishment, it may mitigate his punishment without the limitations that are prescribed for the mitigation of a punishment or to specify a secondary sentence stipulating a ban from operating a motor vehicle or eviction of a foreign person from the country.

Special base for acquittal from punishment

Article 43

The court may acquit from punishment an offender who committed a crime from negligence, when the consequences of the crime strike the offender so hard that the pronouncing of the punishment in this case would not fit the aim of the punishment.

Acquittal due to removal of the harmful consequences of the crime

Article 43-a

For the crime, for which the law prescribes a fine or an imprisonment sentence of up to three years, which crime has been committed under particularly extenuating circumstances, and if the damaged party agrees, the court may acquit the perpetrator which will returned the gain taken away from the damaged party, will indemnify the damage done to the damaged party, or will in some other way rectify the harmful consequences from the criminal activity.

Concurrence of crimes

Article 44

(1) If the offender committed several crimes with one action or with several actions, for which he is tried simultaneously, the court shall previously determine the punishments for each one of these crimes, and then shall pronounce a single punishment for all of these crimes.

(2) The single punishment shall be pronounced by the court according to the following rules:

- 1) if it determines a punishment of life imprisonment of some crime in concurrence, it shall pronounce only this punishment;
- 2) if it has determined a punishment of imprisonment of crimes in concurrence, the single punishment must be larger than each individual punishment but it may not reach the sum of the determined punishments, nor may it exceed 15 years of imprisonment;
- 3) if punishments of up to three years of imprisonment are prescribed for all the crimes in concurrence, the single punishment may not be larger than eight years of imprisonment;
- 4) if it has determined only fines for crimes in concurrence, it shall increase the largest determined fine, but this may not exceed the sum of the determined fines, nor 600 daily fines, in the case when the fine is the main sentence, or the denar equivalent of 10,000 euro in the case when the fine is the secondary sentence. If for a crime, the court has specified a monetary fine in the form of daily fines, and for another crime the court has specified a monetary amount, the monetary amount shall be turned into a daily fine and the thus obtained fine may not exceed the sum of the specified installments nor 360 daily fine;
- 5) if it has determined punishments of imprisonment of some crimes in concurrence and fines for other crimes, it shall pronounce one punishment of imprisonment and one fine, according to the provisions in points 2, 3 and 4 from this item;
- 6) a secondary punishment shall be pronounced by the court if it has been determined even for a single crime in concurrence, and if it has determined several fines, it shall pronounce a single fine according to the provisions in point 4 of this item;
- 7) if the court has determined punishments of imprisonment and of juvenile imprisonment of crimes in concurrence, it shall pronounce imprisonment as the single punishment, with applying the rules from points 1, 2 and 3 of this item.

Crime in continuation

Article 45

(1) The offender who performs with intent two or more crimes, connected in time, which represent a multiple realization of the same crime, using the same permanent relation, same occasions or other similar circumstances, shall be sentenced by the court to a single punishment within the limits of the punishment prescribed for that crime.

(2) The offender who under the conditions from item 1 performs two or more crimes, connected in time, which represents the realization of generic crimes, shall be sentenced by the court to a punishment within the limits of the punishment prescribed for the most severe crime.

(3) If the perpetrator by performing the activities stipulated in paragraphs 1 and 2 achieves a total consequence pertaining to a more severe crime, the perpetrator shall be sentenced with a sentence prescribed for the more severe crime.

(4) The provisions stipulated in paragraph 1 and 2 shall not apply to activities performed after the filing of the charges.

To mete out a sentence for a sentenced person

Article 46

(1) If the sentenced person is tried for a crime perpetrated before he started serving the punishment from a previous sentence, or for a crime committed during the serving of imprisonment or juvenile imprisonment, the court shall pronounce a single punishment for all the crimes, by applying the provisions from article 44, taking the earlier pronounced punishment as already confirmed. The punishment or a part of the punishment that the condemned has already served shall be calculated in the pronounced sentence of imprisonment.

(2) For a crime perpetrated during the serving of a punishment of imprisonment or of juvenile imprisonment, the court shall sentence the offender to a punishment, regardless of the earlier pronounced punishment, if by using the provisions from article 44 the aim of the punishment would not be achieved, considering the duration of the part of the earlier pronounced measure that has not yet been served.

(3) The offender who commits a crime during the serving of the punishment of imprisonment or of juvenile imprisonment, for which the law prescribes a fine or imprisonment of up to one year, shall receive a disciplinary punishment.

Reckoning of pre-trial confinement and earlier punishment

Article 47

(1) The time passed in pre-trial confinement, as well as every arrest in connection with a crime, is reckoned in the pronounced punishment of imprisonment, of juvenile imprisonment or of a fine.

(2) Imprisonment or a fine which the condemned has already served, respectively paid, for a petty offense or an economic offense, is reckoned in the punishment pronounced for the crime whose characteristics include the characteristics of the petty offense or of the economic offense.

(3) For each reckoning, a day of pre-trial confinement, a day of arrest, a day of juvenile imprisonment, a day of imprisonment and a one daily fine or the denar equivalent of 20 euros are all counted equal.

4. ALTERNATIVE MEASURES

1. Goal and types of alternative measures

Goal of the alternative measures

Article 48

The goal of the alternative measures is not to sentence a perpetrator for a smaller crime when that is not absolutely necessary due to criminal and legal protection and when it may be expected that the purpose of the punishment may be achieved by a warning with a threat of punishment (probation), only a warning (court reprimand) or measures of assistance and supervision of the behavior of the perpetrator.

Article 48-a

The following alternative measures may be applied to perpetrators of crimes:

- 1) probation;
- 2) probation with a protective supervision;
- 3) probationary suspension of the criminal procedure;
- 4) work for general benefit;
- 5) court reprimand and
- 6) house arrest.

2. Probation judgment

Probationary postponement of the execution of the sentence

Article 49

(1) With the conditional sentence, the court determines the punishment for the offender and at the same time it determines that this punishment shall not be executed if the offender does not commit a new crime during a period which the court determines, which cannot be less than one or longer than five years (control period).

(2) The court may determine in the conditional sentence that the punishment shall be executed also if the condemned does not repay the property gain gained by the perpetration of the crime, if he does not compensate the damages which he caused by the crime, or if he does not fulfill the other obligations foreseen by the criminal-legal provisions. The time frame for fulfilling these obligations is determined by the court within the framework of the determined control period.

(3) The security measures, pronounced with the conditional sentence, are executed.

Conditions for pronouncing a conditional sentence

Article 50

(1) A conditional sentence may be pronounced when a punishment for the offender was determined of imprisonment of two years or a fine.

(2) A conditional sentence may be pronounced also when a punishment has been determined of imprisonment with a duration of up to two years or a fine, by applying the provisions for mitigation of punishment (articles 40, 41 and 42 item 2).

(3) In the decision making process whether a conditional sentence shall be pronounced, and considering the aim of the conditional sentence, the court shall especially take into consideration the offender's personality, his previous life, his behavior after the perpetrated crime, the extent of criminal responsibility, and other circumstances under which the crime was committed.

(4) If a punishment of both imprisonment and a fine were determined for the offender, a conditional sentence may be pronounced for both punishments, or just for the punishment of imprisonment.

Revoking a conditional sentence because of a new crime

Article 51

(1) The court shall revoke the conditional sentence if during the control period, the condemned commits one or more crimes for which a punishment of imprisonment of two years or longer has been pronounced.

(2) If during the control period the condemned commits one or more crimes for which a punishment is pronounced of imprisonment of less than two years or a fine, after it evaluates all the circumstances concerning the committed crimes and the offender, and especially the relationship of the perpetrated crimes, their significance and the motives why they were committed, the court shall decide whether it shall revoke the conditional sentence. Hereby, the court is bound by a ban on pronouncing a conditional sentence if the offender is to be sentenced to a punishment of more than two years of imprisonment of the crimes determined in the conditional sentence and for the new crimes (article 50, item 1).

(3) If it revokes the conditional sentence, and by applying the provisions from article 44, the court shall pronounce a single punishment, both for the previously committed crime and for the new crime, taking the punishment from the revoked conditional sentence as confirmed.

(4) If it does not revoke the conditional sentence, the court may pronounce a conditional sentence or punishment for the new committed crime. If the court finds that it should pronounce a conditional sentence for the new crime, also, by applying the provisions from article 44 it shall determine a single punishment, both for the previously committed crime and for the new crime, and it shall determine a new control period which cannot be shorter than one and not longer than five years, counting from the day the new sentence comes into effect. For the offender who is sentenced to imprisonment of a new crime, the time served for this punishment shall be reckoned within the control period determined with the conditional sentence for the previous crime.

Revoking a conditional sentence because of a crime committed earlier

Article 52

(1) The court shall revoke the conditional sentence if it determines, after it is pronounced, that the condemned has committed a crime prior to being sentenced conditionally, and if it evaluates that there would be no reason for pronouncing a conditional sentence if it had been known about that crime. In that case, the provision from article 51, item 3, shall be applied.

(2) If the court does not revoke the conditional sentence, it shall apply the provision from article 51, item 4.

Revoking a conditional sentence because of non-realization of certain obligations

Article 53

If the conditional sentence determines that the condemned should realize some obligation from article 49, item 2, and he does not fulfill this obligation within the time frame determined in the sentence, the court may, within the framework of the control period, extend the time frame for fulfillment of the obligation, or it may revoke the conditional sentence and pronounce the punishment that was determined by the conditional sentence. If the court determines that the condemned, for justified reasons, cannot fulfill the set obligation, the court shall exempt him from fulfillment of that obligation, or it shall substitute it with some other appropriate obligation, foreseen by law.

Time frames for revoking a conditional sentence

Article 54

(1) The conditional sentence may be revoked during the control period. If the condemned at that time commits a crime, which calls for revoking of the conditional sentence, and this was determined by the sentence only after the control period, the conditional sentence may be revoked at the latest within one year from the day the control period expired.

(2) If the condemned does not fulfill some obligation from article 49, item 2, within the determined time frame, the court may decide, at the latest within one year from the day the control period expired, that the punishment determined in the conditional sentence should be executed.

3. Conditional sentence with protective supervision

Conditions for determining protective supervision

Article 55

(1) The court shall determine protective supervision when it finds that the conditional sentence shall not have sufficient influence upon the offender not to commit new crimes, again, and the circumstances connected with the offender's personality or his living environment justifies the expectation that the aim of the conditional sentence shall be achieved if measures of help, care, supervision or protection are determined.

(2) The court determines the duration of the protective supervision to a certain time during the control period.

Obligations in protective supervision

Article 56

(1) When the court pronounces protective supervision, it may determine one or more of the following obligations for the convicted person:

- 1) training, specialization and learning a new trade, so that the condemned may retain the job he already has, or to create preconditions for employment;
- 2) acceptance of an employment which corresponds to the capabilities and affinity of the condemned;
- 3) attendance of a program for work with convicted persons who committed crimes in cases of domestic violence;
- 4) execution of the obligations for maintaining a family, raising children and other family obligations;
- 5) enabling insight and counseling in connection with the distribution and spending of salary income and other revenues which he earns;
- 6) not visiting certain types of premises or other places where alcoholic drinks are served and where gambling exists;
- 7) prohibition of using alcoholic drinks, narcotics or other similar psychotropic substances;
- 8) using the free time according to the opinion of the social agency;
- 9) avoiding and not being together with persons that have a negative influence upon the condemned; and
- 10) submitting to medical treatment or social rehabilitation in appropriate specialized institutions;

(2) When it selects the type of obligation, the court shall take into consideration first of all the offender's personality, his health situation and psychological characteristics, the age, the financial and family conditions, the circumstances under which he committed the crime, the offender's conduct after the crime was committed, the motives for committing the crime, and other circumstances regarding the offender's personality, which are of significance for the selection of the type of obligation, taking care not to damage the human dignity, nor to cause unnecessary difficulties in his re-education.

(3) During the time of conditional postponing of the execution of the determined punishment, the court may substitute the determined obligation with some other one, or it may revoke it, upon the suggestion from the social agency or from the condemned person.

Agency for conducting the protective supervision

Article 57

(1) Help and care, supervision and protection in the execution of the obligation by the offender are performed by the social agency and adequate counseling center.

(2) The social agency and the adequate counseling center are obliged:

- 1) to stimulate and to help the condemned, with practical advice, to fulfill the obligation determined by the court, to understand the meaning of the conditional sentence with the protective supervision, in order to achieve its aims; and
- 2) from time to time to inform the court about the state of fulfilling the determined obligation.

Consequences from non-fulfillment of the determined obligation

Article 58

(1) If the conditionally condemned person does not fulfill the determined obligations, the court may reprimand him to fulfill the determined obligation or it may substitute it with some other one.

(2) If the condemned continues not to fulfill the determined obligation, the court may extend the duration of the protective supervision, or revoke the conditional sentence, within the time of the control period.

(3) If more than six months pass after the decision, with which the protective supervision was determined, comes into effect and the supervision has not yet started, the court shall decide again about the need for executing it. +

4. Probationary suspension of the criminal procedure

Conditions for suspension

Article 58-a

(1) For a crime for which the law prescribes a fine or an imprisonment sentence of up to one year, the court may decide, after questioning and hearing the defendant and with the agreement of the damaged party, to suspend the procedure, provided that the perpetrator will not perform another crime within the time period of the suspension of the procedure.

(2) The procedure may, by a decision from the court, be suspended for a time period of at most one year. The time period for suspension is not included in the time period for statute of limitations of the criminal prosecution.

(3) If the perpetrator, within the probation period does not commit a new crime or if, within this period, a previously committed crime is not uncovered, the procedure shall be terminated.

(4) When deciding to apply this measure, the court shall take into account in particular the expressed repentance and apology of the perpetrator, removal of the consequences of the crime and indemnification of damages caused by the crime.

5. Work for general benefit

Conditions for applying the work for general benefit measure

Article 58-b

(1) For the criminal activities for which the law prescribes a monetary fine or an imprisonment sentence of up to three years, the court may, after an agreement with the perpetrator, apply the work for general benefit measure instead of imprisonment, if the crime has been committed under extenuating circumstances and if the perpetrator had not been convicted previously.

(2) The measure shall be applied for a time period from 40 to 240 hours during which the defendant must work without any compensation, within a state authority, public enterprise, public institution or a humanitarian organization, during state holidays, Saturdays and Sundays and not less than five hours per week, during a period of at most 12 months. If there exist health or justifiable personal reasons, the court may extend the execution of the measure for at most six months.

(3) If the court passes a judgment stipulating a monetary fine of up to 90 daily fines or the denar equivalent of 1,800 euros or an imprisonment sentence, it may decide, upon a request from the perpetrator, to exchange the passed sentence for work for general benefit, under the following terms: one day of imprisonment, one daily fine or the denar equivalent of 20 euros shall be exchanged for three hours work for general benefit and the total number of hours may not exceed 240 hours. When deciding to exchange the sentence with the work for general benefit measure the court will take into account the severity of the crime, the level of criminal responsibility, if the defendant had been convicted before and any compensation of the damages and removal of the harmful consequences of the crime.

(4) The court shall supervise the fulfillment of the obligations of the convicted person, in accordance with a procedure specified by law.

(5) If the convicted person fails to fulfill or inappropriately fulfils his/her obligations, the court shall send him/her a written warning, and if he/she continues to behave this way, the court may decide to increase the number of hours or to extend the time period for the measure for at most three months, if there exist justifiable reasons, or to replace the remainder of the measure with a fine or an imprisonment sentence so that every three hours of general benefit work will be replaced with one day of imprisonment or one daily fine. When deciding to replace the measured with a fine or imprisonment, the court shall be guided by the severity of the crime, the level of criminal accountability and the attitude of the convicted person towards the applied work for general benefit measure.

(6) If the convicted person fails to perform the work for general benefit, applied as a replacement for a fine or an imprisonment sentence (paragraph 3), the court shall pass a decision stipulating the enforcement of the original sentence. The work obligations that the perpetrator has fulfilled shall count towards the total sentence, and every three hours of general benefit work shall count as one daily fine or one day of imprisonment or the denar equivalent of 20 euros.

6. Court reprimand

Conditions for pronouncing a court reprimand

Article 59

(1) A court reprimand may be pronounced for crimes for which a punishment is prescribed of imprisonment of up to one year or a fine, and which were committed under such alleviating circumstances which make it especially light.

(2) For certain crimes and under conditions foreseen by law, a court reprimand may be pronounced also when an imprisonment of up to three years is prescribed.

(3) The court may pronounce a court reprimand for several crimes, committed in concurrence, if the conditions from items 1 and 2 exist for every one of these crimes.

(4) When deciding whether to pronounce a court reprimand, and considering the aim of the court reprimand, the court shall especially take into consideration the offender's personality, his previous life, his behavior after the perpetrated crime, the extent of criminal responsibility and other circumstances under which the crime was committed.

7. House arrest

Conditions for applying the house arrest measure

Article 59-a

(1) If the perpetrator of the crime for which the law prescribes a fine or an imprisonment sentence of up to one year, is old and weary, severely ill or a pregnant women, the court may sentence him\her to imprisonment and at the same time, it may decide, with the agreement of the perpetrator, that the sentence should be served in house arrest.

(2) The court may replace the imprisonment sentence with house arrest if there are conditions, involving modern electronic and communications devices, to control the execution of the house arrest, whereby the convicted person is banned from leaving his/her home

(3) The court shall supervise the execution of the house arrest, and it may specify certain surveillance measures to be undertaken by the police in the place where the home of the convicted person is located, with the obligation to continuously report on the execution of those measures.

(4) If the convicted person violates the ban and leaves the house, the court may decide that the convicted person should serve the replaced sentence in full, within a correctional facility.

5. SECURITY MEASURES

Aim of the security measures

Article 60

The aim of the security measures is to remove situations or conditions that can influence the offender to commit crimes in the future.

Types of security measures

Article 61

Offenders may be sentenced to the following security measures:

- 1) compulsory psychiatric treatment and custody in a health institution;
- 2) compulsory psychiatric treatment in freedom;
- 3) compulsory treatment of alcoholics and drug addicts;

Pronouncing a security measure

Article 62

(1) The court may pronounce one or more security measures for the offender, when conditions foreseen by this Code exist for them to be pronounced.

(2) Compulsory psychiatric treatment and custody in a health institution, and compulsory psychiatric treatment in freedom, are pronounced for a mentally incompetent perpetrator of a crime, independently.

(3) In the decision stipulating the measures from paragraph 2, the court may temporarily ban the perpetrator from performing his/her profession, activity or duty, or temporarily ban the perpetrator from operating a motor vehicle, which bans shall last for the whole duration of the application of the measures. The court shall submit its decision to the competent authority or the legal entity where the perpetrator is employed, to the registry court or to the authority in charge for supervising the enforcement of the ban to operate a motor vehicle.

(4) The perpetrator whose accountability has been significantly diminished shall be required to undergo an obligatory psychiatric treatment and stay in a health institution as well as an obligatory psychiatric treatment out-of-prison, if the perpetrator has been sentenced to imprisonment, probation stipulating an imprisonment sentence or a probation with a protective supervision.

(5) The perpetrator may be required to undergo an obligatory treatment for alcoholics and drug-addicts, if the passed judgment stipulates probation, probation with a protective supervision, a court reprimand or an acquittal.

Compulsory psychiatric treatment and custody in a health institution

Article 63

(1) The court shall pronounce a compulsory psychiatric treatment and custody in a health institution to the offender who committed a crime in state of insanity or of significantly decreased mental competence, if it determines that because of this state, he may again commit a crime and that for the removal of this danger, it is necessary to treat him and put him under custody in such an institution.

(2) The court shall stop the measure from item 1 when it determines that the need for treatment and custody of the offender in a health institution has ceased.

(3) For the offender who has committed a crime in a state of significantly decreased mental competence and who is sentenced to imprisonment, the time passed in a health institution is reckoned in the time of duration of the pronounced punishment. If this time is shorter than the duration of the pronounced sentence, the court may determine to send the condemned to serve out the remainder of the punishment, or to let him go on parole, regardless of the conditions prescribed in article 36. In deciding on parole, the court shall especially take into consideration the success of the treatment of the condemned, his health situation, the time passed in the health institution, and the remainder of the punishment which the condemned has not served.

(4) The court shall review the need for treatment and custody of the offender in a health institution every year.

Compulsory psychiatric treatment in freedom

Article 64

(1) The court shall sentence the offender who has committed a crime in the state of unaccountability to compulsory psychiatric treatment in freedom, if it determines that because of this state, he could commit a crime again, while his treatment in freedom is sufficient for removing this danger.

(2) The measure from item 1 may be pronounced against an unaccountable perpetrator, for whom a compulsory psychiatric treatment and custody in a health institution was determined, when based on the results of the treatment, the court finds that it is not necessary any more for him to be under custody and to be treated in a health institution, but only in freedom.

(3) Under the conditions from item 1, the court may pronounce a compulsory psychiatric treatment in freedom also against an offender whose mental competence is significantly decreased and who was put on parole based on article 63, item 3.

(4) A compulsory psychiatric treatment in freedom when applied to a perpetrator whose accountability has been significantly diminished may not last longer than two years.

(5) For a perpetrator whose accountability has been significantly diminished and has been sentenced to imprisonment, the time spent undergoing an obligatory psychiatric treatment out-of-prison shall count as part of the imprisonment sentence.

(6) If in the cases from items 1, 2 and 3 the offender does not submit himself to treatment in freedom, or if he self-willingly abandons it, or if the conditions for pronouncing the measure from article 63 have been attained, the court may substitute it with this measure.

Compulsory treatment of alcoholics and drug addicts

Article 65

(1) The court may pronounce compulsory treatment for an offender because of addiction to continuous use of alcoholic drinks, narcotics and other psychotropic substances, where the danger exists that he shall continue to commit crimes because of this addiction.

(2) The measure from item 1 is executed in an institution for the execution of a punishment or in a health or other specialized institution. The time spent in such an institution is reckoned within the punishment.

(3) When pronouncing a conditional sentence, the court may impose upon the offender treatment in freedom, if the offender agrees to submit himself to such treatment. If the offender does not submit himself to treatment in freedom without justified reason, or if he abandons the treatment self-willingly, the court may determine to revoke the conditional sentence or to impose the execution of the measure of compulsory treatment of alcoholics or drug addicts in a health institution or in some other specialized institution.

(4) If this measure is pronounced with the conditional sentence, except and imprisonment sentence, or probation, probation with a protective supervision, a court reprimand or an acquittal, it may last a maximum of two years.
